A Special Summer

My parents and I joined a charity programme in Yunnan last summer. We stayed at a village school from 15th to 29th August.

The school had a poor learning environment. There were very few tables and chairs. There were also not enough books. The students couldn't learn well in the school.

I had collected some old books and toys before I joined the charity programme. I gave them to the children in Yunnan. They were happy when they received the presents.,

I had collected some shells too. They were beautiful. My parents taught the children English and I taught them how to make crafts with shells. I was surprised that they could do the crafts so well in such a short time. I felt happy.

I will join the charity programme and go to Yunnan to visit the children again next year. It was really meaningful!
