Dear Diary,

Last week, I went to Mexico to visit famous spots and eat Mexico's famous dish, tacos. I travelled to Chichen Itza and The National Museum of Anthropology. It was an eye-opening experience. However, some bad things happened. When I was walking down the street, the ground shook violently, an earthquake was coming! I heard many people screaming and shouting. Many children were crying too. The scene became very chaotic. My family and I ran to an empty place to lay down so that we wouldn't be hit by the falling buildings and cars. Soon, the rescuers arrived in Mexico City to dig out people who were trapped under the rubble and the children trapped under the schools. They were sent to different hospitals for treatment. Many people died after arriving at the hospitals. Luckily, we were saved by the paramedics but some unlucky people who didn't notice were still under the hotel where we slept.

As we were tourists, we joined the other travelers in our group and travelled back to Hong Kong. The travel agent cancelled the trip and gave our money back. Although we got our money back, it was a pity that we couldn't finish the trip. What's more, we experienced serious natural disaster. What a terrible day!
