The Wong family is poor. They live in a village by a hill. They have little clothing, so their clothes have some holes. Their children, Amy and Alex, go to a simple and crude school. Their school is made of wood and the brick wall is about to crack. The roof is made of wood and hay, but it has a hole in it. When it rains, the water drips into the school. Mr and Mrs Wong hope that they can go to a new school but they don't have enough money.

Joe is a farmer. He lives in Africa. It rains very little there. He doesn't have enough water to irrigate the crops. All of the animals, plant and crops die easily. The ground is about to crack. Joe does not have enough food and he is afraid that he will die soon. He hopes that some kind people will help him.

He also hopes that one day he can move to the city.
