An Earthquake

19th September, 2021 (Tuesday)

Sunny

Today in the afternoon, there was a powerful earthquake in Mexico City. It occurred after 1 p.m., about one-hundred miles from Mexico City. There was prolonged shaking too.

When there was an earthquake, I felt frightened but I needed to be calm, so I quickly hid under the table to keep safe.

After two hours, I watched the news and I knew that hundreds of people died and about forty buildings collapsed.

I hope the people who got hurt in the earthquake will get well soon. At the same time, I want to express gratitude to the firemen and doctors because they helped people who got injured in natural disasters and accidents. I want to be a fire fighter or a doctor when I grow up because these jobs are great and meaningful.
