

Last Sunday, Henry was happy because he could play video games, 'Crazy Car'. 'Go, go, go! Yeah! I am in third place!' He said.

Suddenly, the computer was not working. He was angry and said, 'No! My Crazy Car!'

'Don't worry, Henry. It's just a game.' But Henry was still sad. He asked, 'Grandpa, what did you play when you were little?' Grandpa said, 'I made models by myself when I was little.' Henry asked, 'How about your sister, Grandpa?' Grandpa answered, 'My sister was good. She stitched dolls by herself. We still had a lot of fun. Sixty years ago, there weren't any computers, electronic games or electronic products. You are so lucky now.'

Finally, Grandpa taught Henry how to make models by himself. Suddenly, the computer was working again! Henry was happy.
